

Our Orientation

The Strazza Farmstay Flumserberg has been developing into an oasis for people, animals and nature for several years. This place offers visitors and nature a habitat that is unique. The focus is not on the yield or the profit, but on the experience, the diversity and the recreational value. Areas that are left to natural succession develop ecologically undisturbed and valuable biotopes that are rarely found here. By planting many different fruit trees and wild shrubs, an edible forest garden is created in which, among other things, forgotten varieties that are important for the future are once again recognized and used. With events and activities in the form of courses, animal encounters and overnight accommodation, the farm enables a close-up experience of this diversity and the rather unusual but inviting landscape; not cleared, not trimmed, but wild, lively and rich in species.

For the region, the project offers an exciting contrast to the traditional, culturally and historically grown landscape. With new ideas and methods, the manager takes responsibility and steers the use of the landscape in a sustainable direction. Challenges such as climate change, waste of resources, nutrient cycles etc. are actively implemented in sustainable concepts.

STRAZZA

The Strazza-Symbol

The Strazza symbol shows the Celtic Wheel of Being, also called the Fivefold Pattern. The circle is one of the most important symbols in Celtic belief and stands for the ever-recurring and the infinite. The Fivefold Wheel of Life consists of four circles that meet at a point on which the fifth circle is located. It symbolizes four elements which are connected to each other by the middle circle. For the Druids and Celts it reflected the universe, where fire, water, earth and air are brought together by a fifth force. All of them are connected by the wheel of the perpetual cycle of becoming and passing away - because everything is one. Everything originates in the center, the seat of energy and primal power.

The four circles can also be assigned to the four cardinal directions or, as in our case, to the four fields of our work: Experience - Act - Learn - Celebrate, which are held by the inner circle - the Genius Loci of Strazza.
